

Bainisys' new Team Empowerment service provides on-demand quality sources to clients

Thailand, 28 February 2006 - Bainisys, a leading independent IT solutions and services company, has launched an IT resource service called Team Empowerment (Temp). This gives companies and organizations the opportunity to engage Bainisys' skilled IT personnel on a temporary or long term basis as an internal resource to implement, manage and support business strategies improvement and IT projects.

The expertise on offer by Bainisys includes Business Consultant, IT Consultants, Technical Engineers, IT Solution Architects, and Project Managers. Typical projects may include business strategies, infrastructure, data centre and storage and operating environment to messaging, call center, security and network management.

Bainisys' resources are also available on a long-term basis to provide business consulting, maintenance of mission-critical IT systems, operational management of network and IT systems, and IT support services for the network and security infrastructure

"The success of any projects is critically dependent on the quality of the execution, and this in turn, rests upon the experience and technical expertise of the people involved", said Somphob Auesongtham, Head of Professional Services of Bainisys. "As a leading independent IT services and solutions company, Bainisys' decisive difference is the quality of the people we are able to put on the ground. They are not just engineers - they are problem solvers trained to devise innovative solution.

"Through our Team Empowerment services, clients now have access to this pool of expertise to reinforce their own teams and ensure the success of their IT projects. Whilst bringing invaluable expertise and skills to any assignment, Bainisys will take full direction from our clients' managers."

Bainisys' Team Empowerment services are ideal for companies faced with headcount restriction and therefore, require additional support to carry out the necessary IT projects in time or to provide an adequate level of IT support.

With Bainisys' Temp services, they no longer have to concern themselves with having sufficient continuous work following the completion of IT projects currently on hand. It also enables clients to avoid the administrative hassle of new hires; for example, updating of employee records and, in the case of foreign employees, work permit applications.

Companies that routinely experience cyclical workloads can also benefit from having expert IT personnel on-call to help them tie over peak periods. In the same way, this service bolsters IT resources during popular vacation periods when regular staff are away from the office.

Bainisys undertakes a rigorous procedure to ensure clients get someone with the right qualifications and experience for the job. Its consultants can be employed on an individual basis, or as a team, to meet customer's unique requirements and would typically be on assignment for a least a month.
